

Counseling Skills for Speech-Language Pathologists and Audiologists

ISBN 1-4018-0910-3
(C) 2004
326pp, 73/8 x 91/8,
softcover

By Lydia Flasher, Ph.D. and Paul Fogle, Ph.D.

Counseling Skills for Speech-Language Pathologists and Audiologists, written by Lydia Flasher, Ph.D. and Paul Fogle, Ph.D., focuses on structuring and maintaining a successful client-clinician relationship. The book instructs the clinical on what to do in emotionally challenging and difficult situations, such as dealing with violent and suicidal clients, delivering bad news, and repairing counseling errors.

The well-being of the clinical also is addressed, with a chapter dedicated to self-care and advice on dealing with professional burn out, therapeutic failure, the death of clients, and post-traumatic stress disorder.

The 326-page guide brings to life theories of counseling and the therapeutic process through counseling skills, personal experiences and case studies. It features chapter outlines, discussion questions, up-to-date references, and a complete glossary of counseling psychology terms.

ADVANCE for Speech-Language Pathologists & Audiologists, May 24, 2004

A book short